Pipeline Q&A: New Liquids Production, Shale Plays and Regulatory Challenges

January 20, 2012

By: George D. Fatula

Mark Lewis, an oil & gas attorney and Managing Partner of Bracewell & Giuliani's Washington, D.C. office, discussed some of the latest issues affecting the oil and gas industry with Pipeline & Gas Journal editor Jeff Share. On the menu: the effect of liquids-heavy shale production on pipeline development, state versus national regulation, and the importance of clear stakeholder communication for pipeline developers.
